DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claims 9-13,15,16,22,25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. In claims 9,10,11,12,16, how can more than one range be claimed together? In claim 22, what elements does 'configured' include?

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the admitted prior art (APA) in view of Grodin et al. APA is the process discussed on the first few pages of the specification which includes the recycling of glass fibers from a composite material by thermal treatment. As noted in the specification, several problems including quality control result from the prior art process. Grodin et al solves these problems by providing a similar process and apparatus including the treatment of glass fibers in a mechanical environment including cooperating cutters. In order to provide for better quality control, it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to modify APA by using mechanical means to size the material, taught to be desirable by Grodins et al. The remaining limitations would then have been obvious design choices only. For example, the use of screens in a cutting/comminuting device to control material size is well known in the art and of no patentable merit. Also, the manner in which the initial fibers are recovered can be done in various known ways as claimed and is of no patentable merit. Also, the use of glass fibers as an insulation material is well known in the art and of no patentable merit.

Claims 23,24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over APA in view of Hanvey. . APA is the process discussed on the first few pages of the specification which includes the recycling of glass fibers from a composite material by thermal treatment. . As noted in the specification, several problems including quality control result from the prior art process . Hanvey discloses the recovery of fibers by mechanical treatment. In view of Hanvey, it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to modify APA by producing insulation by mechanical treatment.
